FROM THE PASTOR'S DESK

Place your confidence in God

Text: Philippians 3:1-3

Paul was very hard on the people he was referring to here, calling them dogs, a domestic animal known to be filthy and amoral. But it was because he needed to teach his recipients some principles about uncleanness. He reminded them they couldn't save themselves. Jesus illustrated this with a parable, stating that salvation cannot be bought. His disciples were forced to ask: "Who then can be saved?" (Matt 19:16-25).

The writer of Ecclesiastes describe the futility of attempting to predict the future (Eccl 9:1-12). We may sometimes wonder why we should put in any effort if everything is meaningless. There are several schools of thought on this issue. However, anything worth having in life needs some degree of effort (John 9:4; Prov 6:6-11), and we soon learn there's value in putting in the effort each day.

Why then would Paul say he put no confidence in human effort? We may find some answer in 1 Corinthians 3:5-9, where Paul reminded us we will be rewarded for our efforts, while God assures whatever outcome he desires. There's only one main character that matters in our Christians walk and that's Jesus Christ. Therefore, our lives should revolve around him (1 Cor 15:10).

However hard we may work or not work, God is the only one who can assure us of a favourable result. We may meet others along the way that uplift or help us along the way, as we walk this earth. They may be so influential to change the trajectory of our lives. But ultimately, God is the only one who can take us as far as we can ever go (Deut 8:12-18; Zech 4:6).

Bottom line:

Paul warns us against acting like we didn't receive all we have from God (1 Cor 4:7). We must remember to acknowledge God in all we do or whatever we own or don't own. What makes a man great is placing his trust in God and not in human effort.
