FROM THE PASTOR'S DESK

Taking over

Text: Matthew 12:29

What does it mean to take over, in our career, health, walk with God and so on? God has ultimate control over our lives, but man has free will and a lot of responsibility over what happens in their lives and this is true from the beginning (Gen 1:26). But even while God gave man control over everything, it didn't take long for many to lose it, and this has become a recurring problem (Gen 3:1-24).

Are there areas we may be neglecting seizing control as God intended at the start? In so many areas of our lives as Christians, we're expected to exercise control, starting with ourselves. We need to reflect on where we may have lost control and allow others and things to control us. When we yield control, we become carnal Christians.

Why is it important to take control?

Having no self-control leaves us vulnerable to attack (Prov 25:28). Moses is a revered man, with several laudable characteristics we should emulate. He spoke to God face to face (Ex 33:11; Num 12:8), but he also has a problem with self-control, always at a great cost. First he killed an Egyptian in anger and had to go into exile because of his (Ex 2:11-15; Acts 7:23).

But Moses never dealt with his anger while in exile, breaking the tablet of God's commandments (Ex 24:12; 32:15-16; 19). That resulted in him returning to God for a replacement (Ex 34:1). Later, that anger and lack of self-control would cost him the ultimate prize, denying him an entry to the Promised Land (Num 20:10; Deut 3:23-29).

Samson and David had similar problems with self-control and that cost them a lot. In what area have we lost self-control? God expects us to take control of ourselves and this world and not conform or yield to the powers of this world (Rom 12:1). Reflect on areas where you may have lost control and take them back today. We must not allow ourselves to be slave to anything or anyone, least of all sin (Rom 6:5-14).

Bottom line:

Is God telling you to listen or talk more? Are you called to lead or submit? Have you allowed yourself to become slave to your desires and under the control of the world? Let's make a change and turn to God for help.
