Partnership

Text: 1 Corinthians 3:5-6

Partnership is defined as an arrangement between two or more people, working together to achieve a set of objectives. We see this in today's text, where Paul set out the partnership between himself and Apollos in terms of ministry. Likewise, God has designed us to partner with him.

There could be hierarchies in partnership, depending on expertise, power and resource ownership. God does not need us to partner with him, but he chose us because he has a role for us and we see this in the creation process. God could've created the Garden of Eden to be self-sustaining. Instead, he created man to partner with him and work it (Gen 2:8-9; 15).

As God's partners, he wants us to have dominion over his creation (Gen 1:26-28). God is the expert and the creator. For the partnership to work, there must be reliance on the expert and creator. He made and equipped us with all we would need (Psa 139:13-16; Eph 2:10). There must also be a relationship and constant communication (Gen 3:8; Rom 8:14-15), and we must give God priority (Matt 6:33).

Let's take a look at God's partnership with Moses (Ex 3:10-14). We see introduction as they become familiar with each other during their communication as Moses begin to understand and learn about God, starting with his name (Ex 3:14). Then, God as the head of the hierarchy gives Moses instructions about what he has to do. We also see fear, disbelief, lack of confidence and hesitation on the part of Moses.

And yet, God still wants to partner with him and willing to be patient, allowing Moses to work through his reservations. Later, we learnt that God shows his ways to Moses (Psa 103:7; Ex 33:11) and we see Moses yearning to see God's glory (Ex 33:18-23). This is also true for us. God needs us to achieve his purpose on earth. He also needs us to get to know him, to prioritise our relationship with him and to obey and follow his instructions and there is a lot of work to be done (Matthew 9:35-38; 11:28-30).

Bottom line:

What God needs in our partnership with him is our availability. He provides everything else we need to work for him, including intelligence, resources, time and everything else we may need. There's much more that the Lord have in store for each of us.
