We can do only what we think we can do. We can be only what we think we can be. We can have only what we think we can have. What we do, what we are, what we have, all depend upon what we think.

— Robert Collier —

We need to forget what we think we are, so that we can really become what we are.

FROM THE PASTOR'S DESK

Why must we transform our thoughts?

Text: Philippians 4:8-9

In the book of Job, his belief that serving God means he shouldn't have any problems was challenged by his friends who thought Job must have sinned. Elihu, who's younger reminded them that age or experience has no correlation to wisdom (Job 32:6-10). That sort of philosophical viewpoint takes some inward considerations first and so do many of the things we say.

Therefore, what we thinking about is often who we are and what we say or do are driven by them. In today's text, Paul encouraged us to think of certain things, knowing they will influence what we do. That implies that if we think of things that are noble, just, pure and so on, they should drive similar actions or behaviour that pleases God. That in turn creates sustainable habits. The opposite is also true, if our thoughts are negative or sinful (Mark 7:21-22).

Christianity is not conformity with cultures or practices. It is about transformation and changing our thought process, making sure our habits and behaviour are transformed by that (Rom 12:1-2). In other words, before we become a new creature and old things pass away (2 Cor 5:17), our thought processes and mind-set must first be transformed by the word of God (Matt 5:27-28).

For example, Jabez was named by his own mother for the pain he caused her when he was born, but he refused to let that determine his fate and prayed for change (1 Chr 4:9-10). It is interesting to note Paul wrote several of his letters, including the one to the Philippians, from prison (Phil 1:7; Phil 4:4-7).

He was able to state that our current circumstances or troubles are working towards a glorious end point (2 Cor 4:17) and several other profound truths supported by the scriptures. Those viewpoints can only be borne out of a transformed mind-set. Paul knows what's inside matters more than our circumstances (Phil 4:6; Pro 23:7).

Bottom line:

Check yourself, if you find your thoughts are tending toward negative or sinful things that do not glorify God. Follow Paul's counsel and fix your thoughts on "what is true and honourable and right and pure and lovely and admirable ... excellent and worthy of praise" (Phil 4:8 – NLT).
