FROM THE PASTOR'S DESK

Forgiveness

Text: Matthew 18:21-26; 28-35

This is a great time of the year to talk about forgiveness as one of the important foundations for the beginning of another year. Jesus said if anyone brings an offering brought to the altar and remember a brother or sister who has sinned against them, it is better s/he leave the offering and reconcile with them first (Matt 5:23-24). This is because whatever we offer to God from an unforgiving heart is unacceptable.

The parable in our text today illustrates the consequences, when we fail to forgive, can be great (Matthew 18:33-34). Sometimes, we judge certain sins such as murder or other atrocities too evil to deserve forgiveness and damn the perpetrators to hell or worse without much thought. The criminal justice system for example determines the severity of a crime by intentions and the gravity or cost to victim(s).

We may also find it difficult to forgive is because of a sense of entitlement. Consider Simon's reaction when he witnessed a woman kissing Jesus's feet and anointing him with her hair and fragrant oil (Luke 7:40-50). Jesus explained the woman's actions to him by implying that our behaviour sometimes show we don't realise the extent of our indebtedness to God.

In other words, if we understand the depth of God's forgiveness, it should be easy for us to forgive others. God's forgiveness for every one of his children is not dependent on how grave or intentional we are. All he asks is that we confess our sin to be forgiven (1 Jn 1:9). Another main reason to forgive is because Jesus commands it. In fact, when his disciples asked Jesus to teach them to pray, forgiveness was stated as an action and reaction segment (Lk 11:4).

What's the cost of God's forgiveness to us? The price has already been paid for every one of our sins through the blood of Jesus, regardless of its gravity, intentions of the perpetrator or whether they deserve forgiveness or not. If God has already forgiven someone, how can we withhold forgiveness from them?

Bottom line:

Forgiveness is a choice, but it should be an easy one for all Christians. We should make efforts to reconcile and forgive others regardless of what they've done to us, knowing the price has already been paid for our own sins and theirs, even when we don't deserve it.
