Tools for outreach

Text: Colossians 4:2-6

The word opportunity stands out from this text (Col 4:3; 5). It doesn't come round all the time in life. However, there are times an opportune time may bring success where there may have been obstacles or failures. This text suggests even the most insightful preaching may not always yield success. Therefore, it's important to watch out for opportune times and make the most of them.

We may all agree timing's everything. That's why "the race is not to the swift, nor the battle to the strong" (Ecc 9:11). So, Paul prayed to God who created time for opportunities. We must pray for that too. When they come, we must also learn to identify and take advantage of them. Our text today tells us effective evangelism and soul-winning depends on it, with emphasis on prayer.

The journey of faith is not always smooth and an example of that in the life of John the Baptist. There's no doubt the John the Baptist moments are legendary. He identified and elevated Jesus (Jn 1:29; 3:30) and may be instrumental in the selection of some of Jesus's disciples (Jn 1:35-46). However, our convictions may not always be consistent and John was no different (Matt 11:2-3).

Esau was another case, given an opportunity to receive a final blessing from his father as the firstborn. But by trickery and carelessness, he failed to seize the moment (Gen 27:1-40). In contrast, we see how Jesus seized the opportune times that came his way e.g. when he called his first disciples (Jn 1:35-46) and Paul did so too (2 Tim 1:9-12).

But first, we must know who we believe and learn to recognise the moment, when he brings opportunities our way. We can't witness or preach about a Christ that we don't know. Knowing him will also help us to recognise when he brings opportunities for soul winning our way.

Opportunities come through prayer and when seized, they yield results and lead to conviction that often spreads (Jn 4:5-30; Mk 5:18-20). Paul had a dramatic origin story in Christ (Acts 9:1-19). Ours may not be as dramatic, but we need an origin story and a conviction to preach to others.

Bottom line:

When favourable opportune moments are seized, that can be crucial to success in most things, including and evangelism. Let's learn to recognise and take advantage of them to win over perishing souls for Christ.
